Body of Kidnaped Boy Brought in to Shore by the Tide

Peter Levine, Son of New York Lawyer, Vanished February 24

BOUND WITH WIRE

Kidnapers Apparently Grew Panicky and Killed their Victim

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.—(AP)—The wire-bound body of long-missing Peter Levine—head, hands and feet missing—was found and identified by detectives Sunday night on the shore of the estate of Louis Iselin on Davenport Neck, Long Island sound.

The body was hardly more than a mass of decomposed flesh and a few bones but Detectives Edwin Gleason and Michael Lynch said that enough of the kid's clothing remained to make identification possible.

Helmer Strong, 47, a yacht captain employed by Mrs. Iselin, was standing on the shore when, he said, a dark wind blew the body landward and lodged it against a rock. He spread the news and officers were on the scene in a short while.

The boy, son of Murray Levine, a Fifth avenue, New York, lawyer, disappeared from his home here February 24 after leaving school. Almost immediately, the father received a note demanding $50,000 ransom but payment of the money was never made.

Copper Wire

The body was taken to an undertaking establishment where officers began an examination. Gleason said a strong copper wire was found about the torso, part of it binding down the remains of one arm. He said he believed the kidnapers, after failure to establish contact with Levine, had become panicky, bound the boy and thrown him into the water.

There was no death immediately, he said, that death occurred before immersion but an autopsy was ordered to determine this. Dr. Robert Lattimer, assistant city physician of New Rochelle, said he would seek to determine whether the boy had been "poisoned."

A squad of federal investigators, who had been active in the case after March 14 when the father abandoned all efforts to get in touch with the abductor, arrived on the scene a short while after the body was brought in.

Elder Levine Absent

The boy's father was not at home at the time. A telephone call to the Levine home brought word from Peter's sister, Helen, 10, that her parents were away and that she could not make a statement. A servant said Levine was en route to Chappaqua in upper Westchester county.

It was an ironic twist that the father, who had remained so close in the vicinity—at times shutting himself up for days while he made appeals by telephone and radio for the safe return of his son—should be absent at the tragic end. He had offered a $25,000 reward for information leading toward safe return of the boy, setting a deadline of June 15, with a $5,000 reward for the body.

No more than three weeks ago two boys, fishing near the spot opposite Fort Sherm, Long Island, where the body was washed up, reported sighting a body and a woman underwater in the sound also said her craft had struck a body. Police searched the area but found nothing. Sunday night they said they believed it possible that the body had been snagged by being struck by boats.

Identification From Sweater

Police said identification was made principally from a sweater and a maroon windbreaker Peter wore when he disappeared one afternoon after telling a schoolmate he intended going to a hardware store. The windbreaker, Detective Lynch said, bore the initials "C. W." on an Indian head, representing "Camp Wigwag," a camp Peter had attended. The sweater was the same blue one, patched on the left elbow, that he was wearing at the time of his disappearance.

On March 2, a note in Peter's handwriting, begging his father to ransom him, was found in a vacant lot near his home. Two days later, Levine said "the last note" he had received demanded $30,000.

Seven persons in several nearby states were arrested and several were convicted on charges of trying to extort money from Levine on the pretext they could return Peter. Reports poured in from distant states saying the boy had been seen—but each proved false.

The boy, bright, imaginative, and a good scholar, was in the seventh grade. He was fond of the love of G-men, who had searched so patiently for him with local officers, and this at first led some to think he had not been kidnaped but merely had taken himself off on a youthful impulsive adventure.

Warn FD to Keep Out of Primaries

Wheeler Says Interference Will Ruin Party in 1938 and 1940

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The administration was warned Sunday by Senator Wheeler (Dem., Mont.) that the Democratic party would lose the presidency in 1940 unless Roosevelt leaders quit taking sides in the party's primary contests.

Wheeler, who led the Democratic revolt which kept President Roosevelt's court reorganization bill last year, said that Harry Hopkins' intervention in the Iowa primary had widened the breach between party factions. He added in an interview:

"If these government officials are going to continue to inject themselves into primaries between Democrats it can result in only one thing—the splitting up of the Democratic party and the possible defeat of Democratic candidates in November."

"The administration endorsement of primary candidates is creating a schism in the party which, unless it is healed will not only affect the 1938 election, but will likewise affect the presidential election in 1940."

Wheeler said that administration intervention in primary contests "undoubtedly will tend to help very materially a third party, such as that which has been inaugurated by Governor La Follette (of Wisconsin)."

It could develop into a question of whether there will be a third party candidate or an old guard Republican coming into power in 1940.

Wheeler's previous criticism of Hopkins' WPA administration, for endorsing Representative Wearin for the Iowa Democratic senatorial nomination, set off a series of charges in the senate last week that "politics" dominates WPA administration. Senator Gillette, seeking re-nomination, is a candidate against Wearin. Gillette has gone along with the administration on much major legislation, but he opposed the court reorganization bill.

"A man's stand on the court bill seems to be the only real test of whether the administration will support or oppose him," Wheeler said, declaring Hopkins' intervention in Iowa has tended to drive many middle-of-the-road Democrats into neither pro or anti-administration camps.

Other Senators Agree With Wheeler's

statement that the administration was making support or opposition to the court bill the acid test of whether candidates should receive administration support. In addition to Gillette, these anti-court Democrats are up for re-nomination to the senate this year: Van Nuys of Indiana, who is running as an independent; Clark of Missouri; Smith of South Carolina; McCarran of Nevada; George of Georgia and Tydings of Maryland.

TOKYO, Japan.—(AP)—Two airplanes hovered along the western coast of Kyushu Monday night and caused a declaration of a state of alarm for western Japan which was not ended until Tuesday morning.

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia.—(AP)—Nazi followers of Konrad Henlein and German Socialists rioted at Eidenberg, near Graslitz, in Czechoslovakia's border region Sunday. A Henleinist was injured seriously and three Socialists wounded slightly before order could be restored with the arrest of 75 rioters.

This was the only serious disorder reported on the second Sunday of voting in communal elections which have been regarded as a test of Nazi political strength among Czechoslovakia's 3,500,000 German minority. Citizens of 274 communities voted Sunday. Communities which have not yet voted will ballot June 12, to complete the elections.

Seven hundred predominantly German communities, torn between allegiance to the Czechoslovak government and Nazi demands for autonomy under Hitler's "protection," were included in Sunday's voting.

A reminder of the still precarious situation between Germany and the Czech government met every voter at the polls. New ballot boxes were collection boxes into which patriots were invited to drop contributions for Czechoslovakia's defense. On the streets of Praha girls sold little badges in a drive to raise funds for the air force.

Incomplete returns showed Henlein's Sudeten German party, demanding self-government, was overwhelmingly victorious in the predominantly German districts. Pro-government parties were stronger than ever in Czech districts and Communists registered some formidable gains partly at the expense of Socialists.

The trend to the Right in German districts and to the Left in Czech regions was much the same as in last Sunday's balloting. In 89 predominantly German communities, from which returns were available at midnight, Henlein's party won 1,837 seats in local parliaments, German Socialists 160, German Democrats 229, and United Czech parties 229. Henleinists captured from 80 to 95 per cent of the vote in these Germanic regions.

Robbery Reported at Houston Home

$4 Is Taken in Search for Money—Another Attempt Frustrated

The home of Joe M. Houston, 315 North Pine street, was entered Saturday night and robbed of $4 in cash. Entrance was gained through a window.

The robber apparently sought only cash as other valuables were not molested. The Houston family was away from home during the week-end and did not discover the robbery until returning home late Sunday.

An attempt to enter the Roy Anderson home, South Main street, was made Friday night, but the robber was frightened away. A front window was loosened.

Police investigated both cases, but no one had been arrested at noon Monday.

Officers, however, announced the recovery of a lawn-mower stolen from the home of Fay James, South Main. Lon McLarty, operator of a second-hand store, was instrumental in the recovery of the mower and the arrest of a negro boy, aged about 10 or 12 years.

The negro boy took the mower to McLarty's store where he attempted to sell it. McLarty, suspecting the mower was stolen property, told the negro to return later for his money.

When the negro returned, police were waiting and arrested him.

Corn Quota Law Supported If Explained in Full to Farmers

But Many Don't Understand It, and Fear Compulsion

15-Cent-a-Bushel Fine for Exceeding Assigned Quota

LEAGUE IS THREAT

Corn Belt Group Might Vote in Referendum as Solid Unit

By WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

MACOMB, Ill.—Despite protests against corn acreage allotments and possible "farm dictatorship" by farmers joining the Corn Belt Liberty League, many farmers are going along with the government's plans in this section.

The truth is, neither those who are joining in the League's protest, nor those who follow the government lead, understand the plan very well. It is like the Einstein theory, a thousand people talk about it for every one who understands it.

"I've never heard the agricultural act or the over-normal granary plan explained or discussed at any League meeting," says Andy Hodges. "There is a lot of armwaving and talk about liberty and compulsion, but they never take up the plan itself."

"But it makes a lot of the farmers curious. They come in here and ask questions. And pretty near all of them agree with the plan after they've heard what it's about."

Hodges is president of the McDonough County Agricultural Conservation Association. There is such an association in every farm county.

The Pros and Cons of Farm Program

"We're not working against the League, or paying any particular attention to it," Hodges resumed. "In fact, we agree with them that no compulsion can be used on American farmers. But we think this farm program is democratic in the way it works."

"Political parties have nothing to do with it. Those of us who believe in the plan and are working on it think it is bigger than parties, and that something like this will have to be carried out by whatever party is in."

Tilden Burg, head of the Corn Belt Liberty League, admits that the compulsory element in the present bill is diluted and remote. But he fears for the future.

"They get their foot in the door with the compulsory feature of this act, and next year it will be worse. Then the way is open to complete control over our farms by officials. That's what we want to head off right now," he says.

Just Where Is the Compulsion?

So, compulsion being the issue, it is worth examining what degree and what kind of compulsion is provided by the act.

In the first place, no farmer need go along with the plan at all, but can plant whatever acreage he wishes.

If, when August rolls around, government estimates indicate a corn crop of 2,800,000,000 bushels (that is 110 per cent of normal supply and well above normal domestic and export needs), then things begin to happen.

The secretary of agriculture decides how much of that corn can be put on the market without breaking the price unit. And every farmer in the 566 counties of the commercial corn-growing area is notified what is his share of that.

But before these quotas are made effective, two-thirds of the commercial-area growers must vote for it. Once so voted, it is effective against participants and non-participants alike. There is the compulsion.

Corn which a farmer has raised above his quota, once it is voted, must be stored, and not sold or fed, whether he takes part in the plan or not.

Fines Levied for Non-Compliance

Corn marketed in excess of the quota draws a fine of 15 cents a bushel. To prevent hardship to farmers in having their capital tied up in the form of stored corn, the government will loan 25 cents a bushel on the corn. When the price rises to 75 per cent of parity (63 cents this year) the stored corn would be released to the market.

Backers of the present corn plan point out this: The 1936 crop burned out, causing a shortage. But last year's crop was so heavy that there is now a carryover of 1,067,678,000 bushels of unused, unsold, unfed corn in storage. A bumper crop this fall would knock

"The word 'must' doesn't go with us," declares Tilden Burg, president of the Corn Belt Liberty League and outstanding foe of crop control. Pictured above on his farm near Macomb, Ill., Burg says his chief objection to the 1938 farm program is that it is "too rigid."

Sen. Vandenberg Is Holiday Speaker

"Those Who Trade Liberty for Security, May Lose Both"

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The nation mulled the chapter of business and industry Monday for the 70th anniversary of Memorial day, revering the memory of the men who fell in America's battles.

Vandenberg asserted:

"Those who try to trade liberty for security might lose both."

Declaring the United States has come to "another Gettysburg," he said the crisis this time is civil, not military.

Court Throws Out "Lobby Contract"

Fee for Collection of Appropriation "Against Public Policy"

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Declaring lobbying contracts to be against public policy, the Arkansas Supreme Court Monday voided an agreement under which two attorneys sought to collect 30 per cent of a $100,000 legislative appropriation as a fee for their services.

The court reversed an order of Pulaski chancery court and dismissed a suit brought by Attorneys Ed I. McKinley, Jr., and G. B. Oliver, terming their complaint an "attempt to take from the state the control and disposition of its money."

The court's ruling also upheld for the first time the validity of the 1937 act which permitted appeal to the supreme court from temporary decrees of the lower courts.

The court advanced and set for submission June 13 the appeal of Ira J. Golden, Searcy, former State Revenue Department employee, seeking $542.50 from the department for back salary.

Rebuilding Levee From Fulton to Point 7 1/2 Miles South

DAMAGED IN FLOOD

Road to Red Lake Is Getting Gravel Surface for First Time

A $200,000 work project, calling for rebuilding of the Red river levee from the highway bridge at Fulton to a point about seven miles south is underway with a crew of 40 men working on two shifts.

The work is expected to require three months before completion. G. W. Greeson of Louisiana, is the contractor.

The federal government is furnishing funds, the appropriation being included in a bill passed by congress several weeks ago.

The Red river levee, damaged heavily during the winter floods, is being heightened and repaired where possible.

Where the gaps are extremely wide, a new levee is being built around them, connecting the old levee. The work is on the Hempstead county side.

A second work project in the Fulton area is the graveling of the Red Lake road from Cox's Service Station four miles south of Fulton.

The project is expected to be completed within the next two or three weeks. Construction funds is being supplied by the Works Progress Administration.

When completed it will be an all-weather road.

The Lion Assumes a New Expression

IF THE Fates have a sense of humor, they must be indulging in a quiet chuckle these days over the queer things that are happening to the well-known British lion.

Time was when this lion bared his teeth and claws on the slightest provocation, and had a growl that sent lesser folk scurrying to cover at its first rumble. But that, apparently, was before the "realistic" foreign policy of the present British government was adopted.

Under this policy the lion seems to be going to practically any lengths to conciliate anybody who acts tough. It is, indeed, carried so far that it would be positively scriptural in its turn-the-other-cheek manner, if it were not being accompanied by the most prodigious armament expenditures ever heard of.

ANYWAY, it all seems to come to a head down in Mexico right now, with Mexico calmly suspending diplomatic relations with Great Britain and perkily reminding London that the British war debt to the United States remains in default.

This is the sort of thing that would have been inconceivable a few years ago. Kipling's "lesser breeds without the law" was meant to include practically everyone outside the British empire, but most of all it referred to people like Mexicans. Kipling must be turning over in his grave at the very thought of Mexico telling England where to head in.

Now all of this adds up to something. It is simply the logical result of the kind of foreign policies the Baldwin and Chamberlain governments have been pursuing in recent years; and while those policies are not any particular business of ours, the results which they lead to are well worth our study.

IN THE last few years the world has seen the emergence of a new kind of nation: the braggart-in-arms, as you might call it, which openly proclaims its contempt for the opinion of the rest of the world, takes what it wants whenever it feels strong enough to do so, and scoffs loudly at the mere suggestion that the world make a sincere effort to settle its differences peacefully.

The present British government seems to have decided to play ball with that kind of nation; to condone seizures of Ethiopia and Austria, violations of treaties, and menaces directed at peaceful nations.

By so doing, it has simply invited other nations to act the same way—to disregard protests and try any course of action that they think they can get away with.

Apparently the lesson was not lost on Mexico.

Holiday Reform

THE people of New Jersey have worked themselves into a considerable lather over the issue of shuffling the official holidays around, and you can't blame them.

Passed by the state assembly was a bill moving every holiday to the nearest Monday. The people in favor of bigger and better week-ends were tickled to death, but the people who didn't want to be waving flags and shooting off firecrackers some July morning three days after the rest of the nation weren't tickled at all.

Whatever you think of the every-holiday-a-Monday idea, however, there is definitely a need, not merely in New Jersey but everywhere, for a few sensible reforms in the whole year-long holiday schedule.

Heads of families have been wishing for generations, for instance, that New Year could be placed just a few pay days further removed from Christmas. And take the matter of wedding anniversaries; how much easier it would be to remember, men, if all wedding anniversaries could be scheduled for the same day all over the country. And how about keeping April 1 moving around all the time so that the kids wouldn't ever know just when to get set? And the 4th of July: never let it start till after 11 a. m., say...

Somebody get to work on this idea.

The Family Doctor

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The Contribution of Exercise to the Body's Health.

Just why do we exercise? First, there is plenty of evidence that those who fail to exercise do not have what is called positive health. They do not have the vigor and vitality of those who take a reasonable amount of exercise.

Apparently the muscles of our chests, our hearts and of our bodies generally need a certain amount of activity in order to give them that factor that is called tone.

The chief purposes of exercise are to develop the muscles of the trunk and of the back so as to maintain good posture. The muscles of the back, legs and feet need to be developed in order to make walking, running and jumping reasonably easy and graceful. Furthermore, there is a lot of satisfaction in being able to swing a golf club, an ax or a tennis racket, to row a boat or to swim with enjoyment and satisfaction.

Some of the ways in which exercise influences the body have been listed by Dr. Walter H. Brown in relationship to the different systems of the body.

Exercise increases the circulation of the blood through various parts of the body as well as through the body as a whole; improvement of the circulation carries extra oxygen and nutriment to the tissues and at the same time removes the waste materials. Furthermore, the circulation of the blood distributes the chemical materials, the glandular materials and the other substances necessary to cause co-ordinated actions throughout the body.

Finally, our best regulation is brought about by the circulation, which must be maintained in an active state for the best effects.

Exercise also increases the depth and the rate of breathing.

It has also been established that exercise helps to eliminate the waste material by way of the kidneys, intestines and the skin, as well as through the lungs.

Everyone knows that following a reasonable amount of exercise in the open air, the body feels refreshed. At the same time there develops a relaxation that is exceedingly important for suitable rest and mental hygiene.

There are, of course, all kinds of exercise that can be tried. In any good game there is also a certain demand made upon the mind and the intelligence.

This is the time of year when exercise becomes a prime objective for health. A reasonable indulgence will bring us through the summer capable of increased efficiency when fall and winter.

RAISING A FAMILY

By Olive Roberts Barton

All Too Many Parents Are Strangers to Own Family.

"Mother, may we go to the Country Club with you and Daddy this afternoon?"

"No, dear. You and brother are going to the movies. Daddy is going to play golf and I am to assist with the tea. Children are not expected on Saturday afternoons, you know."

"Saturday afternoons are the longest. Mummy. I get loneliest on Saturday. And Ellen's mother takes her. Ellen knows all about it and I don't even know what the Club looks like."

"Well, Ellen's mother takes her every place. I don't approve of it at all. There are places for children and places for their parents. Why don't you want to go to the movie?"

"Just because I want to be with you sometimes. Buddy and I don't see you very often. On Sunday you sleep late, and Daddy goes out to play golf again. And after school you aren't here. I do lessons and go to bed. And Annie won't even let us look when you have a party. I wish I knew some of the people you and Daddy know. I only know about three. But most of all, I just like to be with you. Mummy. You are too busy and we are so busy, too, but can't we ever be together, sometimes?"

Mrs. Ellis was moved greatly by the acute reasoning of her daughter. Pat was only ten, but here she was putting into words facts as they stood.

"Well," she thought defensively, "the Europeans do it. They keep their children in the schoolroom forever. Besides—" she was slower to acknowledge, "one can't really be at her best with youngsters. I won't be young much longer."

Then suddenly another feeling swept her. She looked down at the earnest sensitive face and realized that Pat did not want to go places with her. She merely wanted her.

"Darling," she pulled Patsy close and hugged her tight. "I feel as though you were the mama and I the little girl. Run and get Buddy now. You both are going to the club with me. We'll fix that. And lots of days we'll have good times together. Come on, we'll get dressed. You look as though I had pulled the sun up by a string, young lady."

Patsy did not bother to untangle these unrelated thoughts. She just stared and stared and smiled.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

That Humble Man, Confucius—Carl Crow's Tale Brings Him Alive

You will very likely go a long time again before you find a book with the rare sweep and the power to recreate the past, even though it be the sixth century before Christ, of Carl Crow's latest effort, "Master Kung, the Story of Confucius" (Harpers: $3.50).

You will remember Mr. Crow for his two earlier books, "400 Million Customers" and "I Speak for the Chinese," depicting the China of today and the current Far East crisis. Now he turns his hand to a biography of the man whose philosophy is still a mainstay in the lives of these 400 millions.

Here is no formal book, however, but one of the most human of stories.

For we see the great Confucius just as plain Master Kung, insufferably homesick, deeply religious, a devoted husband but a poor lover, a man who gleaned more than his share of bitter disappointment from life and finally died convinced that his work on earth had been a total failure.

Mr. Crow acquaints you first with the aged soldier father of Confucius, whom nature denied the blessing of this son until he had reached 70, and then only by a new marriage. When Confucius was three the old man died, happy in the knowledge that his clan would carry on.

But he could hardly have guessed that this son would carry on into many centuries. "Master Kung" traces the rise of this humble man, his wanderings, revealing his philosophies against the fabric of the ancient Orient. So the biography becomes an exposition of Oriental history itself. Illustrations dating from 700 A. D. complete the well-drawn picture.—P. G. F.

Early American canal packets had travel tickets which included meals and sleeping bunk at 5 cents per mile. The opportunist, by boarding the boat at dinner-time and riding one mile, the getting off, got his dinner for a nickel.

The Spartans of ancient Greece are credited with the origination of the game of football. They created such a game about 500 B. C., calling it "harpasten."

COLD figures worked out by the Highway Research Board show that auto drivers between 45 to 50 years of age kill the fewest persons . . . about 66 per year for each 100,000 drivers. But the youngsters of 19, 20 and 21, who make the best records in driving tests, kill off 220 persons annually, per each 100,000 drivers.

Square Neckline Charming On That Very Young Lady

By CAROL DAY

This is exactly what a "teen-age" party frock ought to be—very simple and yet truly festive, with little row of bows down the front and pleasing round the neckline and sleeves.

Of course the neckline is square, for that's the youngest of all necklines, and the skirt flares delightfully. Flares, square necklines and puff sleeves are very becoming to your girls.

The dress is as easy to make as it is charming to see. The pattern includes a complete and detailed sew chart.

Taffeta is the ideal fabric for Pattern 8230. Crisp, flower-like, rustling taffeta. It's smart right now. This design would be sweet in dotted Swiss, organza or dimity, too.

Pattern 8230 is designed for sizes 10, 12, 14, and 16 years. Size 12 requires 3 1/2 yards of 39-inch material; 2 1/2 yards pleating or ruffling; 2 yards ribbon for bows.

The new Spring and Summer Pattern Book, 32 pages of attractive designs for every size and every occasion, is now ready. Photographs show dresses made from these patterns being worn; a feature you will enjoy. Let the charming designs in this new book help you in your sewing. One pattern and the new Spring and Summer Pattern Book—25 cents. Book alone—15 cents.

For a pattern of this attractive model send 15 cents in coin, your Name, Address, Style Number and Size to Hope Star Today's Pattern Bureau, 211 W. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill.

Joe heard, they all heard, the whistle of the westbound. Helen waved back. She never did understand . . . That was what happened that June day, three weeks before the wedding . . . But the story goes on; it had to go on. For it is not a love story, but a story about LOVE ITSELF. Read

The True Memorial

The trumpets peal their clangor and the drum rolls a mad peen through the city's street; The flag streams bravely and the countless feet Roar like a sea, as thronging thousands come Triumphant. Far they lie, forever dumb, Those brave young lives for noble years so met; Lost to the Future, never more to greet. The morns with gladness, Seek ye now if some Star-high memorial our hands may rear To those who fought but never saw this day, To those whose blood cements proud Triumph's arch But pass not through? Go rid the land of fear, Base pride, foul dealing; every despot slay! Thus make the years, for them, one glory march!—Selected.

There will be a special practice of the Ogburn orchestra at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Ogburn studio. All members are urged to be present, as this is a practice for the revue, "Fleetside," to be given Friday night, June 3, at the Saenger theater.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard O'Dwyer were Sunday visitors with relatives and friends in Texarkana.

Miss Mary Della Carrigan arrived Monday from Conway, where she was an honor member of the 1938 graduating class of Hendrix college. During her four years in college, Miss Carrigan served as president of Alpha Chi national scholarship society, Theta Mu social sorority and the Junior-Senior House. She has been society editor of the Profile, school publication and on the staff of the Troubadour, Hendrix yearbook. She was a member of the social committee during the 1937 term and of the Women's Initiation committee this term. In the May Day Mothers' Day celebration at the college she served as maid of honor to the queen.

Mrs. Morris Talley left Sunday for Ozona, Texas, where she will join Mr. Talley for a three month's visit in that city. Mr. Talley accepted a position with a bank in Ozona early in the spring.

Friends in this city will regret to hear of the passing of Miss Rosalie Walker, who passed on suddenly at her home in Texarkana on Sunday. Miss Walker having been connected with various establishments in Texarkana has a large number of friends in this city, who will greatly regret her passing.

Mrs. George Prall of McGehee, Ark., is spending a few days visiting with Mrs. T. R. King and Mrs. Lucille Dikly. Mrs. Prall will be remembered as the sister-in-law of Miss Beatrice Prall, a former Hope resident.

The Rev. James H. Bennett, Baptist minister, has returned home from Plain View, Ark., where he has conducted a revival meeting. He will return to Plain View next Sunday to baptize new members.

But another thing that sticks in some corn belt farmers' craws is this: the allotment and quota limitations apply only to the 566 counties of the commercial area. Farmers outside that area can raise all the corn they like without being subject to limitation or penalty.

There is one specific possibility in the League which may be giving Secretary Wallace more worry than long-range political implications.

It is this: if a surplus looms in the fall, and marketing quotas are set, the League will be in a position, being organized, to oppose as a unit in the referendum the imposition of quotas. And since it takes two-thirds to ratify the quotas, the organized opposition of the League might be a vital factor.

Mary Carrigan Is Hendrix Graduate

Hope Girl One of Two Honor Graduates in Class of 1938

Mary Della Carrigan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Carrigan who received the A. B. degree with the senior class of Hendrix college, Conway, May 29, was graduated with honors. She was one of two seniors to receive honors this year, having taken an oral before the Committee of Examinations of the college. Mary Louise Reid of Little Rock also was graduated with honors.

Miss Carrigan attended Hendrix four years and during this time she made a remarkable record in social life and curricular activities.

In her freshman year she became a member of Theta Mu social sorority and was elected vice president.

During her sophomore year she retained this office and became a member of the Profile staff. This same year she was chosen one of the maids in the homecoming court and a sophomore maid in the May Day court.

As a junior she was elected secretary of Theta Mu and treasurer of Alpha Chi scholarship society, Hendrix chapter of Mu Sigma Chi, national honorary scholastic fraternity. The requirements for membership are rigid, including a grade average of "B," and taking into consideration outside interest as well as scholastic requirements.

Last year she was feture editor of the Troubadour staff, a member of the French club, the Women's Athletic association, the social committee, and an associate member of the Hendrix Players.

This year she served as president of Theta Mu sorority, of Alpha Chi scholarship society, and of the junior-senior house. She is assistant editor of the Troubadour and society editor of the Profile, also a member of the women's initiation committee, the French club, Women's Athletic association, and the Hendrix Chorists. She served as maid of honor in the Hendrix May Day-Mothers' Day celebration held this spring.

Miss Carrigan was a humanites major. She was a voice student of Miss Katharine Gaw and sang in the Methodist church choir.

She plans to teach English and history next year in high school.

Miner "Fishes" Gold From Bering Sands Through Hole in Ice

NOME, Alaska—(AP)—An enterprising operator has "fished" successfully for gold through holes chopped in thick ice of the Bering sea.

Howard Lyng, former legislator and member of the territorial welfare board, told how Joe Sullivan, old time miner, conducted the first productive venture in extracting gold from Bering sea sands.

The mining innovation was undertaken 1,000 feet from the beach through a large hole cut in the ice near Bluff 52 miles down the coast from Nome. Dirt was hauled from the ocean bed in a three and a half foot bucket, "high-lined" to the beach and dumped. After 50 days' work the dump was "sluiced" and Lyng said, Sullivan brought $200,000 in gold into Nome.

Sullivan is repeating the operation, and others are expected to try the same system.

Tea growing establishments in Japan number 1,124,000 and cover an area of 100,000 acres. The Japanese tea crop in the last year amounted to 119,795,000 pounds, setting a new all-time record.

How a Hollywood Sound Crew Operate on the Set

1. Harry Mill's, sound "mixer" at the control panel or "tea table," tunes in all the sounds on the stage, much as you tune your radio. By means of his controls he can amplify the desired sounds and suppress the undesirable. 2—Playback machine. All vocal music is pre-recorded and then played back while the scene is being photographed. This makes it possible for the actors to move about the stage "mouthing" the words, without spoiling the quality of the music. 3—Studio Guard Bill O'Neill, whose job is to flag trucks and passersby into silence as they approach the set during a "take." 4—Loudspeaker—used mostly by the assistant director in directing the action of large crowds of extras. 5—Ed Crowder, sound crew "grip" or laborer. 6—Bill Quick, sound assistant.

THEATERS

At the New
If you want excitement, drama, and comedy—all rolled into one picture—don't miss "Gangs of New York," currently showing at the New Theater. This highly entertaining film heralds the return of Charles Bickford to the screen, following his successful Broadway appearance in the play "Casey Jones."

Bickford plays a dual role, that of an officer and a gangster, and does it to perfection. His amazing changes from one character to the other are logical and believable, and he carries the picture from beginning to end. A supporting cast of Ann Dvorak, Alan Baxter, Wynne Gibson, Harold Huber, Charles Trowbridge, Maxie Rosenbloom, Fred Kohler, St., and many other excellent players, does much to aid Bickford in his portrayals.

The picture opens with Rocky Thorpe, notorious gangster, directing the activities of his gang, even though he is in prison. He uses a short wave radio set, and a bribed guard to get messages through to his henchmen. Franklin, a New York officer with an amazing likeness to Thorpe, convinces the district attorney that he could take Thorpe's place, learn the activities of the gang, and gather enough evidence to send them all to prison.

Franklin enters prison, is released as Thorpe, while the real Thorpe is placed in a secret cell in the warden's office, and then the trouble begins. He finally manages to wipe out the gang, with the aid of a young girl, Connie, and her brother, Al, who is a member of the gang.

The screen play of the picture was written by Sunny Fuller, Charles Francis Royal, and Wellyn Totman. James Cruze directed under Associate Producer Armand Schaefer.

"Shadows on the Moon," "Who Are We to Say," "From Sunup to Sundown" and "Mariachi," which is the theme of a lavish Spanish festival.

In the story, Mary, owner of a dance hall, is loved by the gambling sheriff, Jack Rance. On her way to Monterey her stage coach is held up by the romantic masked bandit, Ramerez, with whom she later falls in love, believing him to be Lieutenant Dick Johnson. A former sweetheart betrays Ramerez. He escapes, wounded, in a gun fight with the sheriff but is captured later in Mary's cabin.

After being caught cheating in a game of cards with Rance for the hand of his life, Mary agrees to marry the sheriff if he will liberate Ramerez. On the day of the wedding Rance again finds the lovers together and the picture ends with a very ingenious climax.

The deft touch of Robert Z. Leonard, the director, and the flawless photography of Oliver Marsh, cameraman, have made "The Girl of the Golden West" a beautiful picture. Praise also goes to the supporting cast outstanding members of which are Walter Pidgeon, Leo Carrillo, Buddy Ebsen, Leonard Penn, Priscilla Lawson, Bob Murphy, Olin Howland, Cliff Edwards, Billy Bevan, Brandon Tynan, H. B. Warner and Monty Woolley.

2 Out of 3 Sweep Tickets Are Fake

Odds Against Winning Irish Sweepstake 3 Million to One

NEW YORK—Two out of every three Irish Sweepstakes tickets sold in the United States are counterfeit, which raises the "normal" odds against winning a major prize from 1,000,000 to 1, up to 3,000,000 to 1, according to an expose of the "racket" written by one of the American distributors, who remains anonymous because he says "it's not too easy to find a $15,000 a year job these days with the boss 4,000 miles away."

The expose, published in Collier's, also reveals that if the buyer is fortunate enough to get a genuine ticket, still only 75 cents out of his $2.50 ever gets into the winners' pool. The other $1.75 goes into commissions for salesmen, distributors and wholesalers, bribes connected with smuggling, payment of handsome salaries to executives, "operating expenses" and finally the Irish Hospitals Trust Ltd.

Writing under the pseudonym of "Fred McDonald," the author of the article states that in addition to the numerous American distributors who average $15,000 a year, there are five wholesalers in this country who average $150,000 each.

"The greatest boon to my business," he says, "is that the average buyer of a Sweep ticket has little curiosity and apparently no resentment about the way his $2.50 is treated after he surrenders it. And if you don't think this is eccentric you should consider that Americans buy $100,000,000 worth of Irish Sweep tickets every year."

"Provided of course your ticket is the real thing (and remember the odds are 2 to 1 against that) the man who sells it to you takes a commission of 42 cents. In time the distributor who supplies the agent with the ticket gets 21 cents, and the wholesaler who supplies the distributor gets 21 cents, reducing your $2.50 to $1.66. About 50 more cents are taken out at the Dublin office for 'expenses,' a word that covers a multitude of abuses.

"Out of the remaining dollar, give or take a few cents, now comes the 25 per cent cut given to the 52 beneficiary Irish hospitals, a flood of quarters that through the years has amounted to $57,500,000. So by the time your $2.50 is ready to go into the winners' pool has shriveled to about 75 cents. And that it remains, to suffer no more shrinkage until the government of the world, notably ours, begin to demand their tax cuts from the winners."

McDonald states that if a ticket is genuine it is printed in Ireland and stitched to a cover that is watermarked "Smith Brook Ltd. Irish Paper $1,000 reward conviction imitators." Counterfeiters (who print and deliver receipts as well as tickets) have even duplicated that watermark, he says, but adds that the real McCoy "will stand boiling in three times water and one part common household soda, where the counterfeit watermarks won't."

"It isn't the occasional thief who bothers the trust," according to McDonald, "it's the double menace of the U. S. Government and a series of adept counterfeiters. Confiscating government men and counterfeiters cost the Irish Sweepstakes about a quarter of a billion dollars in paper profits each year."

"Police, publicizing and promoting the Sweep cost the operators fantastic sums of money, but since it is not their own they are fearless with it. The spies, muscle men and messengers within the United States are on straight salaries and good ones. Millions, of course, are paid in commissions, and uncounted thousands in graft go mostly to ship owners or officers who aid in smuggling tickets. Then there is the terrific overhead in Dublin with thousands of clerks, tresuccessive years. The latest of Jane Withers' comedy films, "Reckless," is now at the Rialto Theater. The 20th Century-Fox production features Rochelle Hudson, Robert Wilcox and Boreah Minevitch and His Gang in the cast.

Travelers Win 2, Take League Lead

Bill Nagel Hero in Double Victory Over Memphis Chicks

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — (AP) — Andrew Jackson Reese, star first baseman for the Memphis Chicks, had his "day" Sunday, getting four hits in six trips to the plate in the two games Little Rock won to regain the league leadership. The scores were 5-0 and 2-1.

Second honors of the day were garnered by Bill Nagel, cutoff pitcher now in Traveler livery, who found Right-hander Ed Housser for a homer and a triple, driving in three runs in the opener.

It was Nagel, too, who drove in the tying run with a fly in the second of the six-inning nightcap, called because of darkness, and scored the winning tally in the fifth after singling to begin the frame.

The official attendance figure was 8,207, the largest crowd of the season, for which Reese was probably responsible.

Club officials said a sack of coins and bills was placed in the club house safe for Reese to count Monday. Other presents included taxicab tickets, a straw hat, traveling bag and wearing apparel. To cap the climax of the big day, Reese had to assume control of the Chicks in the fourth frame of the abbreviated contest when Manager Billy Southworth was lamed by Umpire Polly McFarley.

Lindsey, fat and fortyish, made his first appearance in the Cracker park since he was cut loose by Atlanta last year and lost no time in making the crowd of 6,700 customers wish he had stayed here. He held the Crackers to six hits, fanned four, walked only one and never was in trouble.

BARBS

A woman in Boston got a divorce because, she said, her husband wouldn't give her a dime for carefare. They should have moved to New York where the salway's only a nickel.

Show-off children, according to an educator, just show up their parents. Thirty-nine years ago a woman in Maine lost her wedding ring. A man found it a while ago in the kitchen. Won't women ever go in there to hunt for jewelry these days?

The bride, groom, best man, brides-maid, and groomsmen at a wedding the other day were all doctors. The operation was successful, but the bachelor died.

Cornell students are to spend an entire day "doing as the Romans do." Nobody has yet volunteered to act as an Ethiopian.

So They Say

I am almost persuaded that I would be willing to vote for a woman President of the United States.—President H. C. Byrd of the University of Mary-land, after hearing Mrs. Roosevelt talk.

If Kansas weather could only get out of the potential mood into the indicative, we would live forever in a grand hall of the exclamationary.—William Allen White, editor of the Emporia Gazette.

Ability to manage well on a small income can add much to a young woman's appeal.—Mrs. John S. Reilly, writer on marital problems.

You're sure there isn't anything down about driving while drunk? I was pretty tight, you know.—Robert Lackey, of Detroit, to the judge trying him for reckless driving.

Armstrong, Ross to Fight Tuesday

Welterweight Title Is at Stake in Scheduled 15-Round Match

NEW YORK. — (AP) — Barney Ross and Henry Armstrong, the little fighting men who will get around to fighting for Barney's welterweight crown, Tuesday night, went through what they earnestly hope was their final heavy work-out Sunday.

As they completed ring work for the twice-postponed, 15-rounder at Madison Square Garden bowl, the only change in the picture was a pronounced swing around the betting fraternity toward Henry the hammerer, even though everyone says Ross has taken the two postponements easier than Armstrong.

The fight weighed so lightly on Bar-ney Saturday that he went up to the Polo Grounds to put the hex on the Giants for his Chicago Cubs. It didn't work but he had a good time and ob-servers remarked he seemed more like a fellow strolling on a vacation Tues-day night than one with a date against a homicide Hank.

It was all work Sunday for Barney. He went four fast rounds in Stillman's gymnasium and the followers of the fancy were pleased to find his rink work had lost none of its sharpness.

Henry, as is his custom in training, was plenty serious. The little negro weighed about 135 pounds for his workout at Pompton Lakes, where he shared top billing with Joe Louis, and went "all out" in his three rounds.

With the Hempstead Home Agent Melva Bullington

Canning budgets are being given a final checking in the homes of Hempstead county home demonstration club women to be certain that every-thing needed is included in the canning program. Approximately 700 club women will follow canning budgets recommended by the Extension Service, she added.

Mrs. J. L. Eley of the Belton Home Demonstration club is a typical example of someone canning according to a budget for family and the guests she might have.

When the farm homemaker sits down to plan a canning budget for the family, she should take into considera-tion the likes and dislikes of her family and the correct proportion of foods needed to be canned in order to have a well-balanced diet during the winter, says Miss Gertrude E. Conant, extension nutritionist, University of Ar-kansas College of Agriculture.

If the family does not care particu-larly for canned corn, there is no ne-cessity for canning any, as its food value is not important. No other veg-etable is so hard to can and no other vegetable is so low in vitamin and mineral content.

Tomatoes are the most valuable can-ned product as they are rich in vita-mins A, B, C, and G. Miss Conant points out. Ripe tomatoes that are put through a sieve and then canned in sterile jars have 13,870 units of vi-tamin A per pound, as compared to only 2,720 units if cooked, strained, and then canned, she advises. The whole, canned tomatoes also have much more vitamin C than the canned tomato juice.

Carewits are very valuable for their vitamin A content, and are as val-uable as fresh, according to Miss Conant. She suggests that fam-ilies which are very susceptible to

By Otto Harbach and Jerome Kern

OTTO A. HARBACH, born in Salt Lake City, Utah, was educated at Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., where he won an oratorical contest judged by William Jennings Bryan.

By 1910 Harbach had written "Madam Sherry" and other operettas, and had turned to play-writing as well. He was extremely prolific, and it was not unusual to find several of his works in the bright lights of Broadway at the same time.

British Now Admit They Are in Arms Race With Reich

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
LONDON.—The mask is off, camouflage is finished and concealment ended, for now Great Britain stands before all the world as a great, rich power which is rearming against the menace of Nazi Germany.

The decision to spend $7,500,000,000 on armaments, the feverish haste to create a great air force, the preparation of war-time food plans, the enlisting of thousands of men and women to do service in case of air raids, the imposition of a tax which takes 11 cents out of every 40 cents of income, the hastily patching up on ancient quarrels with Mussolini's Italy, the strengthening of the Anglo-French entente—all these are acts designed to get ready to fight Germany if necessary.

For a long time the truth was dodged. When England prepared to rearm quickly to make up for lost time, there were generalizations, such as "John Bull must rearm when everybody else is doing so." But in recent debates in Parliament about the progress of the air program, all comparisons as to the air force were made with Germany's air force. No other foreign power was even mentioned. It was 1933 over again. Then England feverishly enlarged her navy, alarmed by the increase in the German naval forces. Now she is building a vast air force, alarmed by the gigantic size of the one created by Nazi Germany.

It was the threatening Germany situation which, in mid-May, caused a parliamentary hurricane to strike the British cabinet. When this storm was over, Lord Swinton had been blown out of his job as Minister for Air and Sir Kingsley Wood found himself catapulted into the vacant seat.

In recent debates in Parliament the belief was expressed that Lord Swinton was not successfully pushing the British air force program. The fear was expressed that Germany, not only at present had far more army airplanes than Britain, but that her factories had been so geared up that it was almost impossible for Britain to overtake her.

Now the thankless task of seeking a remedy has been again given by Premier Chamberlain to Sir Kingsley Wood, a lawyer whose career to date has been an unbroken record of successes. Sir Kingsley has been described as "a tiny man has been de-voiced." But if he is tiny, he is, like so many able men of his physical build, endowed with a big brain, a courageous heart and dynamic energy.

Since 1918 he has represented Woolwich in the House of Commons. After being made Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Education, he was from 1924 to 1929 Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Health. His chief then was the man who is his chief now—Neville Chamberlain. In 1931 Wood was made Postmaster General.

By his drive, his genius for publicity, his original plans for popularizing the post office, he made himself so important that his post was elevated to that of a cabinet ministry. He advertised in the papers to boost the roll of telephone users. He introduced pretty colored telegraph forms for anniversary greetings. He started a stunt of having a cheap one shilling (25 cents) long distance call all over Britain at night. And then in 1935 he was made Minister of Health.

Now, at 57, he is really the key man in the cabinet. He has its biggest task. The very fate of England may be bound up with his success or failure.

He was the kind that you would figure least likely to succeed.—P. Solomon, of Denver, recalling Stalin as a schoolmate.

We're going to build a fence around the whole town, as a beautification move—Mayor G. C. Hughes, of Homer, Ga., solving the local problem of roaming cows.

BRITISH SEA AND AIR POWER ON REVIEW
Once concerned only with the maintenance of the world's most potent navy, Great Britain now must look to the defense of her aerial frontiers.

You're Good When the Kiss-O-Meter Hits 120

By the AP Feature Service
CHICAGO.—How hot is a kiss? An attempt at scientific measurement of osculatory sensations—we're still talking about the same thing—has been made in a series of experiments at Armour Institute of Technology with a "kiss-o-meter."

The degree of interest, surface covered and moisture of lips determines the resistance set up in the "kiss-o-meter" electrical system. A voltmeter records the resistance in terms of "kisses."

Two kissers getting hot can swing the voltmeter needle to 120 and ring a gong. When they do, and students are present, there are loud cheers.

An elderly couple kissed with the machine in action, but didn't budge the needle. A married couple, bored, hit 35. A kiss on the hand registered 37 kisses.

Subjects are required to hold an electrode before kissing. The electrode is attached to the voltmeter. The machine was invented by two students, Emil Daniel and Lawrence Strocchia.

Education Ass'n. to Sponsor Tour

Special Train to Take School Teachers to New York

The A. E. A. Special, by way of the Missouri Pacific Lines, will leave Little Rock on June 13 for a two weeks visit to various points in the north and east. The high point of the trip is attendance at the National Education Association which is being held in New York City on June 26-July 1.

In Chicago, the tour will include a trip through Chicago's fine parks, Northwestern and Loyola Universities and other institutions of interest. The group will go into Canada from Detroit and make the first stop at Toronto. There will be three days in the city of Montreal, after which the special train leaves for New York City and the N. E. A.

In Philadelphia a special bus trip will take the tourists to see Liberty Bell, Independence Hall, etc. A day and night in the national capitol will give the tour members an opportunity to visit the White House, Pan-American Union, Congressional Library, and other points of national interest.

The State Board of Education has agreed to grant license renewal credits to all teachers taking the trip and making satisfactory reports to the Certification Bureau.

Registrations for the trip have already come in from thirteen counties in Arkansas: Pulaski, Sebastian, Miller, White, Garland, Desha, Union, Little River, St. Francis, Washington, Crawford, Conway, and Ashley—and also from Oklahoma and Texas.

The A. E. A. committee in charge of arrangements for the trip include: Beryl Henry, Hempstead county; Mrs. James E. Kenney, Crawford county; Mrs. Fred McNeil, Pulaski county; Henry Hudson, Pope county; and Mary Rutherford, Independence county.

The second A. E. A. 1938 tour will leave Little Rock on July 3 for two weeks in Mexico.

film. I received the admonition, too. But I had not chatted with her for 30 seconds before she herself brought up the subject.

What she had to say was that she hopes it soon can be forgotten. She regrets the whole thing, and she has been regretting it for seven years. Hedy LaMarr is 24 years old, and was an ambitious beginner of 18 when "Ecstasy" was filmed. She had appeared in one other picture previously. She went into "Ecstasy" unwillingly, an event then did not realize how startling some of the sequences would look on the screen. The love scenes were intensified during production. The part where she swam nude was supposed to have been hazily idyllic rather than daring.

One thing that Miss LaMarr logically might have pointed out, but didn't, is that many a prominent actress in Hollywood, in pre-Hays Office days, participated in scenes which today would be considered outrageously suggestive. Indeed, Hollywood's growing lack of restraint brought censorship upon itself.

Here in Hollywood, Miss LaMarr said, she acquired an undeserved reputation as an uptight individual. This was because she had been ordered not to talk.

Paul Harrison in Hollywood

Hedy, of "Ecstasy" Fame, Would Like to Forget It—"Life-in-a-Zoo" Feeling Is Becoming Monotonous

HOLLYWOOD.—Until very recently, Hedy LaMarr has been having rather a bad time of it in Hollywood. The colony seemed unfriendly to the tall, black-haired Austrian actress—but this was because it had little opportunity to be cordial.

The press never forgetting for a minute that she once starred in the daring "Ecstasy," was unfriendly, too—but this was because it had no opportunity to talk to her.

Miss LaMarr, who was Hedy Kiesler, seems to me a perfect example of studio mismanagement. After engaging her as an actress, Metro put her under strict quarantine, apparently in the naive belief that time would eradicate all memories of her participation in a widely-censored picture.

What happened, of course, was that correspondents, having nothing else to say about her, continued to identify her with "Ecstasy" as they speculated on her future in Hollywood.

The studio forbade interviews and pictures. The Hays Office ordered that "Ecstasy" must not be mentioned in publicity stories. Meanwhile the film itself, chopped by censors into an almost meaningless jumble of sequences, was exhibited in some parts of this country and continued to capitalize on these silent admissions of impropriety.

It's a safe bet that "Ecstasy" would have been pretty well forgotten by this time if the who's thing had been brazened out several months ago, when Miss LaMarr first came to Hollywood. A less sincere person might have hotched the job, but she at least could have won the sympathy of fans.

It's All a Mistake
As thing stand, the torrid flicker is still not forgotten. Publicity stories slyly refer to "the ecstatic Hedy LaMarr."

Now working in her first American picture, having been loaned to Walter Wanger to appear opposite Charles Boyer in "Algiers," she remains uncomfortably aware of the curiosity about her.

"People visit the set," she said, "and ask, 'Who is the tall girl with Mr. Boyer?' And when they are told who I am, they say, 'Ah-hah—the one from "Ecstasy"!' And then they crowd up and stare like I am something in a zoo."

Visitors are cautioned not to try to talk to Miss LaMarr about the foreign
